2. SUMMARY

Giuseppe is a street musician from Italy who found a green violin from the bay. Everyday, Giuseppe secretly plays his green violin and collects money for his padrone, Stephano, and saved the rest of it to buy ticket to Italy. Frederick is an orphan who apprentices in Master Branch’s clockwork shop/workshop. He secretly works on a clockwork man that will allow him to be free from his apprenticeship. Hannah has supported her entire family by working as a maid in the Gilbert Hotel ever since her father was struck with apoplexy.

At first, they did not know each other, but after passing through various events, they know each other. Giuseppe first met Frederick when he helped Frederick beaten by two street musicians. Then after that, Frederick knew Hannah when she and her employer, Madame Pomeroy, ordered clock in the Master Branch workshop. Hannah, who was in Mr. Stroop grave, met Giuseppe who was hiding his green violin. They all then met in front of Hannah’s apartment and started their friendship. They promised to work together to solve their problems.

Helped by Giuseppe and Frederick, Hannah’s necklace problem successfully resolved and Madame Pomeroy forgave Hannah.

Then Hannah, Giuseppe and Frederick tried to find Mr. Stroop’s treasure. Hannah went to Mr. Twine’s house and asked about the treasure. Mr. Twine explained that the real Mr. Stroop treasure was the Mc. Cauley Park. When he was alive, Mr. Stroop gave a lot of money to Mr. Twine for extending the legacy of Mc. Cauley Park, so the park did not get demolished. Mr. Twine offered Hannah the money, but she did not want the money. Hannah respected Mr. Stroop’s dream. Satisfied with Hannah’s answer, Mr. Twine promoted Hannah as a Head Maid replacing Miss Wool.

Another problem comes from Frederick. Frederick, who wants to make a clockwork man so he can become clockwork master, cannot complete the head of his clockwork man. Assisted by Hannah and Giuseppe, he infiltrates to the Archer Museum to learn clockwork man head (Magnus Head). In Archer Museum, Hannah found a piece of golem and kept it for herself. Almost caught by the museum guards, Frederick bring the Magnus head home.

3. REVIEW OF MATTHEW J KIRBY’S THE CLOCK WORK THREE

3.1 Strength of Matthew J Kirby’s The Clock Work Three

Several strengths can be found in this novel. First, the characters in this novel. According to Abrams (1998:32) “Characters are the person represented in a dramatic and narrative work, who are interpreted by the reader as being endowed with particular moral, intellectual and emotional qualities by inference from what the persons say and their distinctive ways of saying it – the dialogue- and from what they do – the action”. In The Clockwork Three, three charming characters; Giuseppe, Hannah and Frederick can make the reader interested to read the novel. The combination of those three characters, make the reader comforts when reading the novel.

The next strength in this novel is the combination between technology and mythology. In the beginning of the novel, the author gives the reader the “technology” with Frederick and his clockwork man.

Then in the middle of the story, the author shows the reader about mythology. Golem is the mythical creature from Jewish mythology. According to Collins (1993:1) “It is a humanoid made by man from clay and water, with incantation and spells”. As a mythology, many literary works uses golem as a character such as Isaac Bashevis Singer's The Golem and The X-Files. There is also a character named Golem in J.R.R. Tolkien's classic series The Lord of the Rings. Today, there is even a golem museum in the Jewish Quarter of Prague.

After that, the author combines technology and Mythology when Hannah put the piece of golem (Mythology) into the clockwork man (Technology). The outcome of the combination is the clockwork man starts to move and become alive because of the piece of golem.

The author makes the story more interesting to read by combining technology and mythology. The story of the novel is became richer because this combination of two things.
Another strength of the novel is interesting style of writing. The author distinguishes the story of three protagonists. In chapter one, the author tells the story about Giuseppe. Then in chapter two, the author tells about Frederick and Hannah rises in chapter three. The author keeps that order of the character emergence in the story until the end of the novel. First, is Giuseppe, second story is Frederick and Hannah becomes the last. The writer thinks that it is the good way to distinguish the point of view of each character, because the novel has three protagonists, so the reader does not confuse while reading it.

The last strength is the strong relationship among the three protagonist. The bond that build by Giuseppe, Hannah and Frederick in the story make the novel more interesting to read. Moreover, the problems they encounterin the novel, instead of making a split, even make them more solid. Because of this strong relationship, they can solve their problem in the novel. This value of relationship is good lesson for the reader.

3.2 The Weaknesses of Matthew J Kirby’s The Clock Work Three

In every work, there are also weaknesses that can be found in this novel. The first weakness is uncommon term, which used in the novel. The author do not give footnotes or enough explanation about the uncommon word. This term often confuses the readers, because there is no further explanation about the terms.

There is no explanation of the word “padrone” until the end of the story. The uncommon term will make the reader wonder about the meaning. The writer suggests the reader when they find uncommon term; they can search the meaning of the term on the internet or dictionary.

Next, there is no translation or explanation of foreign language. One of the protagonists, Giuseppe, is the Italian boy. When he met the other Italian boy, Pedro, he talked in Italian language.

In the quotation above, the word “che cosa faro?” is Italian language, and no translation or explanation about it. Since it is an American novel, it is difficult to read when a foreign language with no translation appears in the novel.

The other weakness is the inconsistent of the writing style of the novel. At the beginning of the novel, the author clearly writes the foreign word. Then in the end of the novel, the author change the style of his writing.

The author write the explanation that Pietro speak Italian rather than write it in Italian word like in the beginning of the novel.
The last weakness is fuzziness setting of time in this novel. In The Clockwork Three, the author never tells to the reader the exact time the story is taken. From the beginning of the story, the author never mentioned the setting of time in the narrative or dialogue of the character in the story. Setting of time in the novel is importance, because the setting of time make a border inside the reader mind. For example, in J. R. R. Tolkien’s The Lord of The Rings, the setting takes place in a past based loosely on Anglo-Saxon Europe. This means that swords, lances and castles are fair game. However, the reader do not imagine about helicopter, phone or digital watch inside the storyline. Since the author of The Clockwork Three never writes about the setting of time in the novel, the reader is difficult to imagine and make a border about the world in the novel.

CONCLUSION

Matthew J. Kirby The Clockwork Three tells about three children in the same city with different background. Giuseppe is the street musician who wants to go back to his hometown in Italy, but he has to escape from his padrone, Stephano. Frederick is the orphan boy who became an apprentice in Master Branch workshop. Frederick wants to become the clockwork master. Hannah, a maid in the Gilbert Hotel has to work to support her family economy because his father is struck with apoplexy. Through unexpected circumstances, they became friend and realize that each other can solves the others problems.
As a literary work, this novel has strengths and weaknesses. The strengths of this novel are character, combination of technology and mythology and distinguish the plot based on the point of view of the character. The weakness of the novel are there is no further explanation about the uncommon terms and there is no translation or explanation of foreign language. The fuzziness of setting of time and inconsistent of writing style are also became the weakness.
